

Dr. Terry Fitzgerald

Dr. Terry Fitzgerald received his doctorate in clinical psychology from the University of Rhode Island, and completed his residency at the Pain Evaluation and Treatment Institute of the University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine. He was awarded a post-doctoral fellowship in behavioral medicine and occupational rehabilitation from the University of Rochester School of Medicine and is board-certified in clinical health psychology.

He and his family moved to Asheville in 1992 where he formed the Center for Occupational Rehabilitation (COR) which has operated as a free-standing facility exclusively for the rehabilitation of injured workers since January 2004. COR follows an evidenced-based, regional 'center of excellence' model.

Terry speaks and publishes on the topics of health behavior change, and the treatment and prevention of chronic work disability.
